The search is for the just word, the happy phrase, that will give expression to the thought, but somehow the thought itself is transfigured by the phrase when found.—Cardozo, Growth of the Law 89 (1924).

We lawyers are always curious, always inquisitive, always picking up odds and ends for our patchwork minds, since there is no knowing when and where they may fit into some corner.—Charles Dickens, Little Dorrit, bk. 2, ch. 12.
